THE BIG FEES SOME OF THEM HAVE

[Troy Press.]

Yesterday the Press informed its readers through a special telegram from New York of certain high fees charged by lawyers in the Vanderbilt will case. As was there stated, Mr. Heury L. Cliuton charged $250,000. Mr. Cliuton was afterney in the case, which was well worked up, and probably his bill contains items of money expended by him for detective service and other matters. Judge Georgo F. Comstock, of Syracuse charged and received $50,000. We tearn that Mr. Vanderbiit declines to pey Mr. Clinton's tremend-ous bill, and we don't blame hlm, for it is utterly absurd that any lewyer should receive is one case, and that only of short duration, a larger sum than one lawyer in a milliou makes than one lawyer in a milliou makes by a lifetime of hard work; and we think that Judga Comstock (whose bill for altting in this case and look-lag wise and occesionally arguing a point of law was very modest in com-parison with Clinton's) has great rea-son for commending Mr. Venderbilt's generosity. We learn that Mr. Scolt Lord, the counsel for the contestant of the will, counset for the contestant of the win, received $100,000. These immense fees are beyond anything ever known or heard of, not only in this country but in foreign lands. The tenous iswyers of England or France heve never received such large sums, even in ceses of much longer continuence. To be sure, there have been very few, To be sure, there have been very few, if any, cases involving such en immense amount of money. for there have been very few men in the world worth so much property as Mr. Cornellus Vauderbilt lelt. During the entire eight years when the famous Warren Hastings trial went ou, none

To come to our own city, which is eldoni far behind in anything, the late Henry Burden paid his lawyers upwards of $75,000 in the famous Spike case, and ex-Chancellor Walworth, the referee in that case, received $50,000 referee's fees. In the Marshall will case Townsend &

Hog Pens and Hog Cholera

V. J. Emery writes to Rural New Yorker: "Now that summer is here, hogs, if confined, should be furned out to pasture. Many a farmer keeps his pigs in a little yard or pen, often near the house, where the mud is as deep as they can wallow through. He throws their feed in the mud, from which they must pick it as best they can, and clear water is something that they do not get from one year's end to another. Yet such a man will wonder why his family have the fever and his logs the choloral I have been hogs kept in this way, or worse yet, in floored peus which were never cleaned, until at killing-time their belles were full of small micers; and such meat is packed and shipped East as primo mess pork! Places where fifth always reigns supreme are the fattering pens connected with distilleries. I believe that such places have as much to do with spreading disease among hogs as among cattle. So far as I have ever known, when cholera makes its first appearance in any district, it has nearly always been among the swill fed hogs of distilleries or took treated as described above. I do not claim that in great eleminess we have an infallible preventive of cholera; but do claim that with cleanliness and proper variety of food, the appearance of the malady would be less frequent and its victims fewer; that farmers by a little care and attention might save themselves much these which were accounted the fall of the second degree is called the Feltows Craft. After the ordinary business of the Lodge commences, This consists in settling accounts and voting sinus of money in charity.

has been mentioned at a previous The candidate has to submit to a ballot, and it successful the Deacons are sent out to prepare him. This is done by taking from him everything metallic, slipping his left arm out of his shirt sleeve, and through the bosom of the shirt so as to leave the arm and left breast bare, and making him roll the left leg of his trousors above the knee, blindfolding him, and tying a ropo around his neck called a cube tow. The Senior Deacon now rethe Junior Deacon to the closed door, on which he is instructed to give three raps; these are answered by three raps inside, then one rap is exchanged, and the door is opened about two inches. After a conversation between the two Deacons, he Is let in, and the point of a compass is pressed against his left breast. He is then led to the middle of the room, and tohi to kneel when a prayer is offered. This over, the Master takes him by the hand, and says: "Arise fellow your leader, and fear no danger." He is led three times around the lodge, and thally is harted before the Senior Wurden in the west, who teaches hits to approach the east, his to approach the east who may be exposed to a malarious section. teaches him to approach the east, his fret torming the right angle of an oblong squaro. At length he timis himself close to the altar, where he kneels upon his naked left knee, both right and left knees forming a square. His left hand is now placed under the bible, square and compass, and his right hond over them. In this position he repeats the oath, in which he engages to keep inviolate the secrets of the order number no less penalty than to have my throat cut across, of Memery, Universal Lassing from ear to ear, my tongue torn out by the roots, and my body buried in the rough sands of the sea, a cable

Cedar illoft College was founded in 1882. It is declifedly non-scetarian, but strictly religious in all its aims. It receives no may pupils, all must isopral in the College with the teachers. This favors the excreise of that care and solicitude of which young indice should not be deprived while about from the paternal roof. It has been one of the leading schools in Southern Kentucky for the cheation of young indices. The locality is benthful. Its prives have been accommodated to the stringency of the times. Its Farnity is full, and its course thorough. The rooms are neally carpieted and conveniently furnished. A large caupus and pleasant surroundings render it a delightful place for the cheation of young ladies.
